

The AustCham Young Executive Committee invites you to their 7th CEO Forum with Simon Lopez, COO of AXA and Andrew Stevens, correspondent of CNN. This is an evening forum (for those under 35) with presentations from two prominent leaders and an open discussion on their growing businesses and career.

By way of background:

Simon Lopez is the Chief Operating Officer of Asia Pacific of AXA Investment Managers. He has worked as Barrister-at-Law at Victorian Bar, Melbourne, Australia before moving to the UK and moving into finance related roles at Hartley's, before joining AXA Investment managers in 2003. Simon has now held the position of COO for AXA IM in the UK and more recently APAC since 2008 and holds a BA in Economic History from Monash University and Grad. Dip. In Applied Finance and Investment from the Securities Institute of Australia.

Andrew Stevens is an award-winning anchor and correspondent based at CNN's Asia Pacific headquarters in Hong Kong. He co-anchors CNN's weekday morning show 'CNN Newsroom, Live from Hong Kong'. He has interviewed many of the world's political and business leaders and has reported on Asia-Pacific for more than two decades.
